Local Families At Higher Income Levels

Over 50% Above $5,000 Net Income

New York, Nov. 11 - Thanks to the income gains they have chalked up in the last few years, many Appomattox County families find themselves in higher income brackets than before.

Some of them, whose earnings had been below $8,000, have graduated to the $10,000 and up level. Their former positions on the income ladder have been taken over, in turn, by families that had been receiving less than $8,000.

The upward shift has been taking place all across the board, with the result that the middle and upper brackets contain a larger proportion of the local population than ever, leaving a smaller segment in the lower brackets.

The finds are brought out in a special report, covering every area of the country, released by Sales Management.

What was sought through the study was a better understanding of the purchasing power of each community than was afforded by its "average income" alone.

Is that average made up of a small proportion of families with big incomes counterbalancing a very large proportion with small incomes or are earnings more evenly spread?

In Appomattox County, it is shown, no less than 54.5 percent of the households had disposable cash incomes, after payment of their income taxes, of $5,000 or more.

This was a greater proportion than was recorded locally three years ago, when a similar study was made. It was then 46.6 percent.

The increase, 8.0 percent compares with a 5.7 percent rise in the United States and with 6.7 percent in the South Atlantic States.

Since the report is concerned
